

ERICA ROSENFELD HALVERSON

How the Arts Can Save Education: Reimagining Possibilities

TEACH IN COLOR:
K-8 ARTS INTEGRATION
AND STEAM CONFERENCE

BIO

Dr. Erica Rosenfeld Halverson is a trained theater artist and award-winning professor and chair in the Department of Curriculum and Instruction at the University of Wisconsin–Madison. In that role, she teaches a range of courses to undergraduates and graduate students, including future teachers. Erica has been a field leader in the learning sciences, creating a sub-field that focuses on how people learn in and through the arts. Erica is a seasoned performer and co-founder of two community youth arts programs: Whoopensocker (Madison) and Playmakers Lab Theatre (Chicago). She also performs regularly, working with the Children's Theater of Madison, Four Seasons Theatre, and Music Theatre of Madison. She lives in Madison with her husband, Rich, her daughter, Gracie.

CONNECT WITH ME

 erica.halverson@wisc.edu

NOTES